

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF NEVADA

* * *

JUAN ALFONSO NUNO VELASCO,

v.

RENEE BAKER, et al.,

Respondents.

Case No. 3:13-cv-00431-MMD-VPC

ORDER

On March 27, 2015, this Court entered an order granting petitioner leave to conduct discovery, including leave to serve subpoenas on various entities. (Dkt. no. 29.) In response, respondents filed a motion for reconsideration or, in the alternative, motion to stay discovery pending resolution of a petition for writ of mandamus in the Ninth Circuit. (Dkt. no. 30.) That motion was followed two days later by an emergency motion to quash subpoenas. (Dkt. no. 31.)

The subpoenas are directed at six (6) law enforcement agencies in Nevada and California and request, in essence, any information the agency may possess that relates to the petitioner's case. A decision on respondents' motion for reconsideration is forthcoming. In the meantime, the potential for prejudice to the petitioner is outweighed by the hardship imposed on the parties subject to the subpoenas. Therefore, the subpoenas issued by the petitioner on March 30, 2015, shall be quashed pending resolution of respondents' motion for reconsideration (dkt. no. 30).

It is ordered that the respondents' emergency motion to quash subpoenas (dkt. no. 31) is granted.
